

Guardian talks protection

In the latest episode of Guardian talks protection, Guardian's Head of Marketing, Rachael Welsh, talks about why Guardian is supporting charity Young Lives vs Cancer. Rachael discusses how advisers themselves have raised the issue of how difficult children's critical illness cover conversations can be, prompting new research showing the financial strain it can place on families after a child is diagnosed. We're also running a series of webinars over the next 4 weeks for advisers looking for a refresher on our products, do you think we could also include that please? We've got an image attached we can use for that as well.

Looking for a refresher on Guardian's proposition? They've got you covered.

For the next 4 weeks, Guardian are running webinars with their expert team, each one focussing on a different one of their covers.
