

Fit for a fresh start

Hello,

A historic default from a difficult period does not always tell the full story.

In Bluestone Mortgages' latest example from their Beyond the Score series, an applicant had built a self-employed business as a fitness instructor alongside full-time employment. While he had a historic default on his credit file, the two income sources gave a fuller view of his affordability.

Read how they were able to look beyond one past event and support a Right to Buy house purchase.

See how they helped

More than a score

Every application is assessed on its own merits. But this example shows why it can be worth starting a conversation when a client's current circumstances are stronger than their credit history suggests.

Start the conversation with Bluestone

All applications are subject to criteria.